

FRIDAY, JAN. 12, 1894.

Senator Emmelhuth was not sat upon more than four times at yesterday's session of the Councils.

If the petitioners for repeal of the prohibition law had got the same of Quartermaster Willie Hall, an expert on alcohol for export to the hither up north, they might have been treated with common courtesy.

It appears the petition of the doctors and druggists, a large proportion of them P. G. men, was tabled instead of referred to a committee in the Councils yesterday. The Councils are evidently getting tired of their own muddling of the law.

THE HUSTLE FOR OFFICES.

The fact that we are almost daily reminded by the subsidized press that the Executive are being spurred on to the work of removing experienced and competent public officials of supposed royalistic sympathies, and appointing in their places others, professedly loyal to the present substitute for popular and representative government, would indicate that we are to have a further exemplification of the beneficent rule proposed to be perpetuated by the would-be "polyglots" (see Star of Jan. 6, in the near future, in the displacement of others long in the public service, who have the courage of their convictions and who disdain to stultify themselves for the sake of retaining positions already rendered distasteful by reason of a perfect system of espionage, at the price of their honor. Much mud had been slung by the annexation press, aimed at the personnel of the civil service under the monarchy, but no better proof of the judicious selection of public servants under that much abused regime can be advanced, than that these men are now found upholding and maintaining their convictions and principles, regardless of consequences to themselves. Further proof in the same regard is found in the confessed difficulty the Government finds in filling the places of those dismissed with competent persons, and in the many miserable failures who have substituted men of capacity that were among the earliest to receive the dirty kick of the oligarchy. Hawaiians have never been seen to so great advantage as during these months of extreme peril to their national life and personal rights, and it would be well for those in power to mark it. The Government have been forced to adopt a policy that they will find impossible to carry out straightforwardly without hopelessly crippling the civil service.

While on the subject it is learned that recent so-called impartial investigations have been conducted by the president of the Annexation Club, sitting as Inquisitor-in-Chief. To make the combination complete we would suggest that the Chief Justice, having publicly announced his partisanship, be also added to the board of examiners and take a hand in the work of cleansing the public service of all who dare refuse to bear arms in support of this eminently impartial tribunal. If the executive of the Annexation Club would devote its spare energies in preparing essays and arguments to demonstrate the prospective advantages to accrue to Hawaii by annexation to anything, and can maintain their position in debate on this question, it will at last be doing something material toward the consummation of the object in view, but to this date coercion, and not argument, has been the ineffectual weapon to convince the very many skeptics on this point.

Stowaways Watched.

Captain Patterson, of the harbor police, has had his "single" eye on the Union Steamship Monowai all the while she was in port to-day. He had been made aware of the fact that there were a number of stowaways on board, but they had been made to sign the articles and were kept at work below. Several made their appearance on deck during the forenoon, but finding they were under surveillance went below again. It will be remembered the Monowai caused the adoption of the Stowaway Act. Captain Carey "fired" a couple of men off the steamer when he called in here on his way to the Colonies some time ago.

S. S. Monowai.

The Union Steamship Monowai, Carey commander, arrived in port at 7:30 o'clock this morning. 48 days from Sydney, having left that place Dec. 25, and 13 days from Auckland. The Monowai experienced very fine weather and variable winds to Apia, thence had strong head winds and heavy seas up to arrival. She brought three saloon passengers and one steerage, and had in transit 28 saloon and 30 steerage passengers. The Monowai resumed her voyage to San Francisco at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the P. G. band playing her off.

TRIAL OF MRS. KING.

She Preserves Her Gay and Festive Demeanor.

At the opening of the District Court this morning W. C. Pond, T. L. Kean and H. Dobson were brought before the bench for drunkenness. The three pleaded guilty and were sentenced to pay fines of $2 each.

At Lam, for assault and battery on Mon. Jan. 10, in front of the Police Station, was sentenced to pay a fine of $7.

The trials of Pico Miranda for assault, and Ah Yon, the Chinese lad who stabbed a native yesterday with a sheath knife, were put off until the 16th.

Mrs. Vina King, the colored lass who picked up Geo. Washington, her lover, on New Year's day in a house on Queen street, was next put on trial. The woman appeared in a neat tight fitting gown and greeted Washington, who was in the courtroom, with a smile. Dr. Wood, for the prosecution, testified that he saw Washington on Jan. 1st; he had a fresh wound near his left temple about 1 1/2 inch long, which was bleeding a little. Blood was coming from both his nose and mouth. Although he was in great pain, the witness could not find that there was any injury to the brain. The flow from the mouth and nose must have come from some internal injury. The wound was not probed, and the bleeding subsided after twenty-four hours. Evidence was found of an accumulation of blood over the soft palate.

Geo. Washington, after being sworn, stated that he had lived with Mrs. King for about two months and a half, at a place on Queen street. He came home on the morning of Jan. 1, at one o'clock, bringing two friends with him. Defendant was alone. Powell and Lancaster arrived later. Beer was opened and the party enjoyed themselves. Finally he (Washington) became angered, not jealous, at certain conversation going on between defendant and Powell, and he slapped her face. The party left shortly afterward and the woman went out in the yard, where she fainted. The witness brought her in and gave her camphor. He left the house and returned later to find she had gone. Then he went to sleep. When he awoke he saw a lot of blood around, and a pick on the floor with blood on it. He got up and blood started to flow again. A man answered to his cry for help and went and got a policeman. Witness did not know who struck the blow, and did not see defendant until she came in with a doctor. She then asked him how he felt, but being weak from loss of blood he did not answer her. Previous to sleeping he had a revolver in his hip pocket which defendant took, but on his hearing the click of the hammer he had taken it away from her.

Marshal Hitchcock deposed that defendant was taken in his office on Jan. 1, at 1 p. m. for examination. She was told that her answers would be taken down and used in Court, and that she had the option of answering for her benefit or otherwise. Defendant in answer to queries had told witness that Washington was jealous of Powell at the time of the trouble, and that Washington struck her about the face with his hand. She was afraid of her life and George going outside, she availed herself of the opportunity and ran away to a native woman's house. She came back and looking through the window saw George asleep on the bed. She went out in the yard, found a pickaxe and standing on the doorstep drove the pick with both hands into his head. He threw up his hands and she ran away. Returning later she peered through the window and saw the man washing the blood from his face. He saw her and said he did not think she would do that to him. He asked her to go for assistance and she went to the Hotel and got Dr. Howard. On their return she was arrested. That was the gist of Mrs. King's statement to witness, who describes her as being cool and collected when she made the confession.

Deputy Marshal Brown corroborated the Marshal's evidence. The case was continued till 2:30 o'clock, at request of J. L. Kaulukou, who appears for Mrs. King.

After argument by counsel this afternoon, Mrs. Vina King was committed to the Circuit Court for trial. Kaulukou offered no defense.

Progressive Versus Respectable.

EDITOR BULLETIN:

It had generally been surmised by the honorable and genteel portion of the community, that Walter G. Smith had been conducting the Star to suit himself, and that the shareholders were, not only not responsible for, but rather deplored and tried to gag the violence of his temper, and his vulgar, low, indecent, scurrilous style of writing. But it now comes out in print, that the Star has been conducted editorially "in a manner thoroughly in accord with the sentiments of the progressive element of these islands, and to the entire satisfaction of the shareholders." And this extraordinary statement is signed by J. Emmelhuth, J. H. Fisher, G. W. Smith and C. W. Day. Thus the constant abuse heaped upon the Queen, as a woman; the unkind kicking at the fallen foe; the libellous attacks and blackguarding of any citizen who respects himself enough to remain faithful to his past allegiance and oath to our Constitution, or even of anyone who does not yet fully realize the beauties of annexation; the repeated savage advice for persecuting and deporting en masse every man and woman who does not happen to agree with the "progressive element" of the P. G., imported from the slums of San Francisco; the insults and slurs against inoffensive natives, and lastly, but not least, the violent threats against the American Government, and the sanguinary incitements preached to the Americans here, by a pseudo American filibuster, to fight against American troops if ordered to land, and to kill American soldiers, if they obeyed the orders of their chiefs—all this dishonorable, dirty, contemptible, treasonable policy is represented as thoroughly endorsed by the "progressive element" of the town (God save us from such progress) and sustained by four men who hitherto had the apparently ill-fated pretension of being gentlemen! However, it may be asserted that the progressive element referred to, does not include the respectable, honest, impartial classes of both political parties, and that the above mentioned signers will have to submit to the consequences of the proverb, "birds of a feather flock together." Two of them—Emmelhuth, on his sister person, and Fisher, with his vinegar countenance—bear the indelible stamp of their moral worth; but the public will be surprised to find the other two, Smith the druggist and Day, the father to the popular doctor, in such bad company; yet the respectable element here will remember that there are other druggists and other doctors around, perhaps not so "progressive," but certainly imbued with a better idea of what is moral and upright, healthy and decent in journalism.

Colonial Items.

Victoria has had an earthquake shock.

The Victorian Cabinet has decided to have an Agent-General in London.

Sandford Fleeming is still working in London for an Imperial subsidy toward a Pacific cable.

The Australian horse Highborn has won in India, for the second time, the Viceroy's cup.

Another party of emigrants numbering 190, has sailed for Paraguay in the bark Royal Tar, intending to settle in "New Australia."

The Premiers of the Australian Colonies have agreed to invite the Duke and Duchess of York to visit Australia and New Zealand this year.

Huddart, Parker & Co., contractors for the Canadian-Australian steam mail service, have started a steam line between Sydney, New Zealand ports and Tasmania.

Civilization is advancing in Samoa. The natives are being punished for bathing in paria naturalibus, and they have forged a good many State debentures.—Sydney Truth.

Mr. Kidd, Postmaster-General, New South Wales, thinks that the Postal Conference at Wellington (New Zealand) in January will afford an opportunity to the colonies to come to some definite conclusion, and decide what action should be taken regarding relations with Canada, and the manner in which Australia should be represented there.

On Pitcairn Island, in the Eastern Pacific, the original home of the Bounty mutineers, there are 23 families with a population of 141 all told, and the education of the children is provided for by a school-mistress supplied by the Seventh Day Adventist Society. A prominent member of the Adventist Conference, Elder Gates, remains on the island for his health. With the exception of droughts, which of late have much exercised the people, life on Pitcairn, it is said, is easy enough.

A Contradiction.

EDITOR BULLETIN:

In last night's BULLETIN appeared an article copied from the San Francisco Report stating that I had applied to the Secretary of the Navy for leave to navigate the yacht Tolna, and had been in return rebuffed by him for making application at this time. Any application for leave to the Secretary of the Navy and his reply would be forwarded and received by my commanding officer and the Admiral commanding the station. Such is not the case; in fact the article is untrue in every particular. I request that you make an early correction.

Who's Your Matter?

During one of the English yacht races last week the Prince of Wales wore a very peculiar headgear of a Polish type, and as his yacht passed the American warship Chicago, the band struck up "Where did you get that hat?" A storm of cheers from the ship and the yacht greeted the musical rally, and the American officers feared that his royal highness might consider it a personal liberty and take offence. But he declared afterward that he was delighted with the reception, which, he thought, was given in a true sportsmanlike spirit.

Keoloha luko petitions for probate of the will of Oao luko, her deceased husband, leaving to herself and five children property consisting of real estate valued at $3600 and personalty of $200 value, and that letters testamentary issue to her as executrix named in the will.

Judge Cooper has examined and approved the accounts of Bruce Cartwright, trustee of the estate of Emma Kaleleonalani, showing transactions of $5482 on either side for the year 1893. The Queen's Hospital received $24.56 after payment of annuities and expenses, also $300 toward scholarships in St. Andrew's Priory.

Samuel B. Rose presented his fourth and final account as guardian of Charles H. Rose, minor, and asked for discharge, the minor having come of age. Judge Cooper approved the accounts and, finding by personal questioning that the ward had reached his majority and was satisfied with the transactions of the guardian, ordered that the guardian be discharged upon filing the final receipt of the ward for the balance of $795.80 due him.

In the matter of the estate of Hannah K. Kapali, before Judge Cooper, the court heard the application of the husband praying for letters of administration to issue to him. During the progress of the hearing a document was presented purporting to be a will which might also be construed as a deed of conveyance. The Court before granting letters of administration took the matter under advisement so as to construe the document in question. Castle for the husband, petitioner; Kahookano for the heirs, contesting.

GUNS FOR THE FAIR.

Part of the Historic Austrian Battery of Kalakaua.

Among the exhibits which were sent to the Hawaiian Village at the Midwinter Fair in San Francisco by the S. S. Monowai to-day were two Austrian field pieces. These field pieces, attached to which is quite a history, were used by R. W. Wilcox in the attempted revolution in 1893. Twelve of these pieces were brought from Austria several years ago by the late King Kalakaua, who was under the impression that they were a gift from the Austrian Government, but some time afterward a bill was received by the Hawaiian Government for $15,000 for the guns, and the amount had to be paid. The Austrian Government had quite a lot of trouble getting them across the German Empire on account of certain strict regulations. The field pieces are eight centimeter.

Other curios sent by the agents of the Hawaiian exhibit are sea and land shells, a land turtle, specimens of sugar cane and a number of minor articles.

Hawaiian Hardware Co., Ltd

Saturday, Jan. 6, 1894.

We mentioned something last week about a weather prophet, telling us we were going to have dry weather during 1894. He wishes to amend his statement now by saying that it only applies to localities where it does not rain. The weather will not hurt us to any great extent because, when the streets are muddy, people will want Hartmann's steel mats, and we have them in stock. Another thing they must have is an Improved Stone Filter. The rain makes the water impure and it is necessary to filter it to keep disagreeable things from being taken into the stomach and causing scarlatina and all sorts of diseases. We keep the best filter manufactured; one that may easily be kept clean, and is cheaper than any other.

Frank Walcott's knife sharpener is known all over the world and with a generous use of printer's ink we hope to make it very well known here. This contrivance is made of compressed emery and resembles a scythe stone in shape. Having sides of different grades of fineness, it is adapted for sharpening any edge tools, and must supplant files for keeping cane knives in order because one of them will outlast many dozen files. We believe we have all of these sharpeners in this market; if you want your carvers sharp with the least trouble and expense, ask us for a "Frank Walcott Knife Sharpener."

Rochester Student lamps are in demand wherever people read books for pleasure or mental profit. They are especially desirable for the purpose because they give the maximum light with the minimum heat. They are not as ornamental, perhaps, as some of other styles but they are quite as serviceable for general purposes. We invite your attention to an assortment we have just opened; to us they seem to be handsomer than any student lamps we have ever seen in other shops.

Some months ago we imported and sold a lot of small grindstones made especially for scissors and other fine cutlery. They jumped at once into favor, and we had to order more. We've waited a long time for them because the demand for the article has been so great in the United States that the manufacturer could not keep up with it. We received our portion of the output on the Australia, and we are ready to fill a limited number of orders. These wheels are made of a composition of which sapphires are a part, they are as unlike our ordinary grindstone, except in shape, as wool is unlike cotton.

Since we published a statement showing the tensile strength of our galvanized wire, we have received other evidence of its superiority for all uses to which wire may be put. We have had the wire twisted around itself twenty times with no signs of the galvanizing cracking or pulling off. The trouble with most is that it will not stand short twists, but ours will.

As soon as the weather clears up there will be a lot of painting done. We claim to keep as large a stock of white lead, colors and oil, as there is in the country. We also keep Hendry's Ready Mixed Paints which are the best mixed paints in the world. There is more zinc and japan in these mixed paints than any other manufactured, and the additional quantity of these ingredients is added on account of the effect of the Hawaiian climate on paint. You will find the Hendry paints better spreaders than any other, and they will retain their gloss and original color longer. They are put up in half gallon and gallon tins—ten of the latter size will cover any ordinary house two coats.
